

MJ Kabaci, Ph.D.

Current Position

Adjunct Lecturer, University of Georgia

Academic Background

- University of Georgia, Ph.D., Consumer Economics
- Texas Tech University, M.A., Mass Communications
- Texas Tech University, B.A., Advertising/Public Relations

ACCI Activities

- Conference Chair, 2014 ACCI Annual Conference
- Editor, Consumer Interests Annual, 2012 – 2013
- Member, Graduate Student Webinar Committee, 2012

Other Professional Activities and Honors

- Journal of Consumer Affairs, Reviewer

Memberships

- Association for Financial Counseling, Planning, Education
- Georgia Consortium for Personal Financial Literacy
- ACCI

Research and Teaching Interests

My research interests focus on the financial literacy of college students and the identification of knowledge, skills, and behaviors necessary for positive financial management and financial security. My teaching interest centers on demonstrating to students the application of economics in their real lives as consumers.